SKYCRON brings Chamber Chat to life

By CORY CARLICK
Chief Creative Officer & CEO, SKYCRON

Starting on December 20th, you might have noticed that the Chamber Chats received a television-style podcast. In case you were wondering who is responsible for wrangling this into broadcast territory, you can blame us at SKYCRON for it. (Mainly me.) Guilty as charged.

Joking aside, though, it's a new direction that we're proud to partner with the Regina & District Chamber of Commerce on. It's a great way to share the passion of the great work Chamber members are doing in a way you can hear the passion from the comfort of wherever you are. It also is a way for us here at SKYCRON to give back to our community.

A vibrant business community deserves a high quality production with international-level production values. After all, Chamber members are making a difference not just here in Saskatchewan, but around the world. AGT Foods is innovating for food across the globe; Viterra and Nutrien keep grain moving, and Mosaic is making sure the international needs of potash are being met.

That's what we're bringing to the Chamber with this special podcast series -- bringing our international television and video experience and bringing it here at home.

You might know our name, but if you don't, chances are you've seen our stuff on TV or elsewhere. Some of you might know us from our TV show, Go/Nitro, which reaches over 74 million U.S. viewers on American television but we produce our television series right here in Saskatchewan -- and it's Saskatchewan owned and controlled, too.

Those with Access here in Saskatchewan get FOX Rochester, where it also airs. You might also have seen one of our client television commercials, corporate videos or event livestreams.

We want to hear your stories. We want all Chamber members to know what you've been doing, so we can celebrate our collective successes. Regina has a strong business community which we're proud to be a part of.
