

Events to focus on how to support a healthy, revitalized downtown

A new series of events hosted by Regina Public Library (RPL) and Regina Downtown Business Improvement District (RDBID) bring local stakeholders together to have open discussion on the health and well-being of Regina's downtown.

Designed to invite the public to join the conversation about their city's downtown area, these panel events are free to attend and provide refreshments. The next two events both take place in Central Library's Film Theatre (2311 – 12th Ave).

"How do we effect real change in the issues we experience downtown? That's what we'll be talking about in these conversations," said Amber Christensen, Executive Director, Central Library, Regina Public Library. "We'll get to hear the impact that our panelists and their organizations are making with their own initiatives and share ideas about how we can help each other make our downtown a safe, welcoming, thriving place."

"Panels like the Downtown Safety and Community Well-being and City Builders: Local Edition are critical ways to address challenges and share initiatives with our community," said Judith Veresuk, Executive Director, Regina Downtown Business Improvement District. "We're grateful to partner with Regina Public Library and other stakeholders on these thought-provoking discussions that can shape our downtown."

Downtown Safety and Community Well-being Wednesday, August 28 at 7 p.m.

Understand your downtown more thoroughly as panelists share and discuss challenges and opportunities related to safety and well-being in the downtown core, as well as strategies and initiatives that the represented organizations have taken or are undertaking to address these challenges.

Panelists include:

- Dave Slater, Manager, Community Well-Being, City of Regina
- Kendra Wren, General Manager, Cushman & Wakefield/Cornwall Mall
- Sgt. Laurie Alexander, Alternative Response Coordinator Regina Police Services
- Jason Knudsen, Outreach Program Manager, Regina Street Team
- Cecila Rands, Upstander Education Coordinator, YWCA Regina

Moderator: Judith Veresuk, Executive Director, RDBID

Mail-in-ballot applications now being accepted

Regina's Municipal/School Board Election is on Wednesday, November 13. Mail-in-ballot applications are now being accepted online. Residents can have their say in the next local election by voting from the comfort of their own home.

Visit Regina.ca/elections to apply for a mail-in-ballot. When applying through the online form, by email, mail or fax, ensure you include a copy of the front and back of your government-issued photo I.D. You can also apply in person with any of the acceptable forms of identification found on the website.

Elections Regina will review all applications and if all criteria are met, eligible voters will receive their mail-in ballots delivered to their home in mid-late October. If the application does not include proper I.D. requirements, or is missing information, voters may be asked to submit their application in person.

Voters can still apply for a mail-in ballot in person at the Election Office at 1025 Park Street.

Ballots must be received at the Elections Regina Office by 8 p.m. on Election Day, November 13, 2024. Voters are reminded to ensure adequate time is given for Canada Post to process their mail.

For more information, visit Regina.ca/elections or call 306-751-4479.
