The Regina Downtown Business Improvement District (RDBID) and Regina Public Library (RPL) invite the public to hear from a panel of local stakeholders on Wednesday, September 25, to discuss how Regina can support a healthy, revitalized downtown.

"We want a thriving, vibrant downtown core that benefits everyone," said Amber Christensen, Executive Director, Central Library, Regina Public Library. "This panel connects our community with important Regina voices who are committed to revitalization."

"Panels, like the City Building Speaker Series: Local Edition, are critical ways to address challenges and share initiatives with our community," said Judith Veresuk, Executive Director, RDBID. "We're grateful to partner with Regina Public Library and other stakeholders on these thought-provoking discussions that can shape our downtown."

Beginning at 7 p.m., the event will take place in Central Library's Film Theatre (2311 – 12th Ave).
